- Antitrust/competition

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Mr. Luo focuses on high-stakes intellectual property and antitrust disputes and is widely recognized for his exceptional experience in complex cross-border standard-essential patent (SEP) licensing disputes.

Mr. Luo has long represented clients in landmark matters and has a deep understanding of China's intellectual property protection regime, adjudicative rules, and industry competition practices. Several of the cases he has handled have been selected as guiding or representative cases by the Supreme People's Court, the Beijing High People's Court, the Fujian High People's Court, and the Beijing Intellectual Property Court. Beyond litigation, Mr. Luo also advises and represents clients in sophisticated intellectual property licensing negotiations and strategic matters. Drawing on his in-depth understanding of practice across major jurisdictions world-wide and his keen judgment in complex commercial negotiations, he has helped clients achieve commercially and strategically significant outcomes in multiple high-value patent licensing matters. Mr. Luo also has extensive experience in patent invalidation proceedings. With both legal and technical training, he is particularly adept at handling complex matters involving semiconductor and telecommunications technologies and is able to deliver legal advice that combines deep technical sophistication with strong commercial value at the intersection of frontier technologies, industry competition, and dispute resolution.

EDUCATION

Mr. Luo received a B.S. degree in Microelectronics from the School of Electronics Engineering and Computer Science of Peking University in 2006, and an LL.M. degree from the Law School of Peking University in 2009.
